Item 1.01- Entry into a Material Definitive Agreement

On December 29, 2004, Office Depot, Inc. (the “Company”) entered into an agreement (the “Agreement”) to sell certain land and contractual rights (collectively, the “Property”) to Stiles Corporation. The execution of the Agreement was previously reported in a Form 8-K filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”) on December 30, 2004. The Property, located in Boca Raton, Florida, was originally acquired by the Company in 2003 for development as a new global headquarters for the Company. The Company subsequently determined not to proceed with such development.

The Agreement originally provided that the purchaser had a thirty-day inspection period, at the conclusion of which it could rescind the Agreement. That inspection period was subsequently extended to February 11, 2005 by the execution of a First Amendment to the Agreement. The Company did not (and does not) consider that amendment to be material. On February 11, 2005, the parties entered into a Second Amendment to the Agreement (the “Second Amendment” and the Agreement, as amended, the “Amended Agreement”).

Pursuant to the Second Amendment, the Company agreed to provide seller financing equal to approximately ninety percent (90%) of the purchase price for the Property (the “Purchase Money Loan”). The Purchase Money Loan will be secured by a first mortgage on the Property or other security acceptable to the Company and will mature on December 31, 2005. The parties have undertaken to use their respective good faith efforts to agree upon the form of appropriate loan documentation before 5:00 on Friday, February 18, 2005. In the event they are unable to do so, then the purchaser may either terminate the Amended Agreement or waive the right to receive the Purchase Money Loan.

Pursuant to the Second Amendment, the purchaser may no longer elect to rescind the purchase in connection with its due diligence activities (unless any continued due diligence by the purchaser shall uncover a material default by the Company of a representation, warranty or covenant under the Amended Agreement) and the closing date for the purchase and sale has been scheduled for April 12, 2005.

The purchase price for the Property is $ [* * *].<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> The Company has filed a request with the SEC for confidential treatment with respect to the purchase price to be paid, for a period of one year from the original date of the Agreement, unless the Property is actually sold during that period of time.
